Chip and Pin Guide

Global Commercial Card Accounts

(applies to both Visa and Mastercard)
Welcome to Chip and PIN
Your Bank of America card is now Chip & PIN enabled. The embedded microchip provides enhanced fraud protection and increased global acceptance.

Getting Started
Customize your PIN as part of the card activation process. Register your card to unlock additional PIN features at: bankofamerica.com/globalcardaccess
Retrieve or view your PIN anytime by visiting the Global Card Access website
Change or reset your PIN if needed by calling the number on the back of the card and selecting the PIN change menu option.

- Memorize your PIN and keep it confidential.
- Never provide your PIN via email, phone or a website.
- If you have cash access, the same PIN is used at ATMs and chip-enabled merchants.
(Note: the PIN will not automatically grant cash access if your company policy does not allow it.)

Using Your Chip & PIN Card
Step 1 – Insert your card face up in a chip-enabled terminal. Leave the card in place while the transaction is processed.
Step 2 – Follow the prompts to complete your purchase. In most cases you’ll be asked to enter your 4-digit PIN.
Step 3 – Remove your card from the terminal once your transaction is complete.
- Your Chip card also has a magnetic stripe and will continue to work at merchants that are not yet chip-enabled.
- There is no change to online or phone transactions. Complete those purchases as you do currently.

Frequently asked questions
What if I enter my PIN incorrectly?
- You have three consecutive attempts to enter your PIN correctly. After the third failed attempt, your Chip card will be blocked. You will need to contact Global Card Services and follow the prompts to reset your PIN.

What if I forget my PIN?
- Your PIN may be accessed via the secure Global Card Access website at bankofamerica.com/globalcardaccess.

What if I lose my Chip & PIN card?
- Call Global Card Services at 888.449.2273 in the U.S. or 800.300.3084 in Canada. If you are outside the U.S. or Canada, call collect at 1.602.379.8753.
