The power to __let people fly

Bank of America
Merrill Lynch

Jane Erlandsen, Executive Director, Bremerton Family Branch YMCA:
Our relationship with Skookum began in 2014.

And the more we found out what they did, the more excited we were getting about how can we do that here?

[Visual of: Man wipes down equipment, Jane in office speaking, Man walks across basketball court holding cones, “Skookum contract services and the local YMCA see abilities, not disabilities”]

We nurture people with disabilities.

[Visual of: Man places balls from a mesh bag onto a basketball court between cones in a gym]

Some have been told that their potential stops at a certain point.

[Visual of: Man mops basketball court, Jane sitting in office speaking]

Skookum and the YMCA look at that and say no, it doesn’t stop at that point. Let’s keep going.

And let this person fly.

[Visual of: Man dusts basketball court floor, Man stands facing camera holding a broom, “What would you like the power to do” shows over the man center screen]
