

Candace Browning Head of BofA Global Research

Candace Browning is head of BofA Global Research, a group that provides clients and employees of Bank of America and Merrill Wealth Management with top-quality investment insights and ideas, and industry and company overviews.

The BofA Global Research division has more than 680 analysts located across more than 20 countries. The team provides recommendations on approximately 3,100 stocks and 1,200 credits globally as well as economic forecasts for 53 countries, forecasts for 34 commodities, and recommendations on 51 currencies.

The research division was named Institutional Investor magazine's Top Global Research Firm for 2019 and has held the top spot for seven of the survey's nine years. Other notable rankings include No. 1 in the 2019 Global Fixed Income survey and No. 2 in the All-America survey.

Candace has served as the head of BofA Global Research since 2003 and has been named one of the Top 25 Most Powerful Women in Finance by American Banker for the past 10 years.

Prior to her position as head of Global Research, Candace served as director of Equity Research for the Americas region, with responsibility for all research coverage in Canada, the United States and Latin America. Previously, she served as deputy director, Global Research Product, Pan-Europe, for Merrill Lynch EMEA Research Management.

Candace holds an MBA in marketing from Columbia University and a bachelor's degree in history from Brandeis University. She is a member of the St. Paul's School Board of Trustees and serves on the Board of Directors of the Dutchess Land Conservancy.